

CRAIG BATTUELLO

This dynamic Cabernet Sauvignon came from a knoll located on Block 13 of the Battuello Vineyards property. This clone 7, propagated on a mix Craig developed an early interest in riding on the tractors on the family estate and the interest continued as his father, Dominic, and Grandfather, Matteo, taught him everything he needed to know about running the farm. Despite his capabilities by the young age he left the ranch to further his education and attended Cal Poly San Luis Obispo. After completing his education in Crop Production and moving home he began farming beside his father, Dominic. Craig continues to advise on the daily operations on the vineyard and has great pride in seeing the where the 5th generation will take the family farm.

DAVE BATTUELLO

Since a young child Dave spent his free time following his Grandpa, Dominic Battuello, around the vineyard and he developed a deep bond with his grandfather. Dominic's dedication to hard work and love of the land was something that burgeoned Dave's passion for the family business. Dave attended Cal Poly San Luis Obispo and graduated with degree in Fruit Science. After returning home to St. Helena, Dave applied some of the new technology he had learned while still utilizing the most important aspect of growing award winning fruit; hard work. Dave now takes his own children out in the fields in hope to give them the same understanding and dedication to tradition as he learned from his grandfather.

MICHAEL TRUJILLO

Growing up on a ranch, Michael Trujillo worked acres of hay, barley and vegetables along with sheep and cattle on land tethered to his family for generations. His grandparents were early century homesteaders of Spanish descent who settled in the Rocky Mountain state of Colorado, where they raised their children in a rich, agricultural life. From a young age, Michael learned the value and reward of working the land:

Michael discovered his passion for winemaking in the early 1980s during a spring break from his college studies as an engineer. On a road trip to California, he stayed with a family friend who had a small winery in Napa Valley. It proved to be a life-changing visit. Michael's history, knowledge and experience, bringing his keen love of the vineyard together with more than 34 years of winemaking proficiency.

TOREY BATTUELLO

Since her marriage to Dave in 2014, Torey has gracefully assumed the role of overseeing the business operations at Battuello Vineyards. As Dave's passion thrives amidst the vines, Torey's adeptness at managing the intricacies behind the scenes shines through. Beyond the vineyard's endeavors, she treasures moments with their two children, Case and Alessa, and embraces family travels to their second haven in Montana.
